- The current status of the Important Water-Related Area may be described in qualitative or quantitative terms. The general idea is to gain a sense of whether the area is in good condition, heavily impaired or somewhere in between.
 - At a minimum, sites should strive to describe the status of the Important Water-Related Area on a scale ranging from 0 to 5 using the following guidance:
 - The site has been lost or is beyond a cost-feasible restoration effort.
 - The site is in a severely degraded condition and will require considerable restoration.
 - The site is in a somewhat degraded condition and will require some restoration.
 - The site is in an acceptable condition, but its condition could be improved.
 - The site is in good condition and will require little work.
 - The site is in excellent condition, requires no work and is an example of a well-preserved site of that type.
